a charge against him of conduct unbe

not heard of the return of Madden. He wasn't particularly interested appar-

trouble about this thing."

Madden has made strenuous efforts to persuade his first wife, who lives at No. 725 Smith street, Brooklyn, to refrain from prosecuting him. His mother and his brother-in-law called at the Smith street house last night, but could get no satisfaction.

Mrs. Madden gets 35 a week as a cierk in a store. Her husband has promised Inspector Crose that he will pay her 200 a month. This $20 a month is what they are using as a persuader with Mrs. Madden.

Promises to Assist Wife.

"We have it all fixed to get Joe back on the force," said the policeman's mother last night. "We have the Smith family fixed. They are going to get the marriage annulled and drop the whole business. If you promise to let Joe alone you'll get $20 a month from him as long as he is on the force. If you have him arrested and sent up the river you'll never get a cent."

Mrs. Madden is perplexed. The sum of $20 a month would double her income. She supports her mother, her child by Madden and the child of a dead sister on the $5 a week she makes now. The chances are that she will conclude that a husband on the police force paying her $20 a month is a better proposition than a husband in Sing Sing.

Maurice Blumenthal, attorney for Madden, when seen this afternoon at his office, No. 36 Nassau street, said he twould have a statement in relation to the public in a few for the public in a few

Justice Mayer rejected the testimony of Ruth Dunn as to Walter Brooks's attentions to her, By this Mr. Jerome had hoped to establish the motive of jealousy.

Conversations of detectives with the Burns girl at her home and in police station were also barred out, Justice Mayer saying :

"This will work a great innovation," protested Assistant District-Attorney Schurman.

" It is needed," retorted the Judge. "There is a complete, unquestioned effort on the part of the officers to conceal the exact cause for her arrest. Any statement she made was not a voluntary statement in the sense of the Court of Appeals." The Burns girl listened unmoved to Ruth Dunn's testimony and PRINCETON, N. J., March 22.-Princeton and Rutgers met this afternoon in the first baseball game played this season at Princeton. While the grounds was rather heavy, an improvised diamond in the corner of the field being used, the conditions for playing were much better than was expected a couple of days ago. Newman, Underhili and Stevens pitched for Princeton. This position and third base, which was covered by Wells, a freshman, are the two interesting positions on the Tiger team.
